Remonstrance of the People of New Netherland to the Director-General and Counci

[From the Copy in the Royal Archives at the Hague; File, West Indie.]

Right Honorable! We, your sorrowful commonalty and subjects, beg to represent, with al humility, that having, beforehand, for our own vindication before God and man, in these sa and difficult circumstances, maturely considered and deliberately weighed what is necessary t be done and concluded at this critical and urgent conjuncture, we cannot conscientiously forese that anything else is to be expected for this fort and city of Manhattans (as your Honors mus be convinced), than misery, sorrow, conflagration, the dishonor of women, murder of childre in their cradles, and, in a word, the absolute ruin and destruction of about fifteen hundre innocent souls, only two hundred and fifty of whom are capable of bearing arms, unless yo be pleased to adjust matters according to the conjuncture of the time.

Your Honors are, in the first place, better aware than we, that four of the English King' frigates are now lying in the road at Nyack, with six hundred soldiers, not only ordered hithe by his Majesty, but bearing also commissions to all the Governors of New England (a populou and thickly inhabited country), to impress troops, in addition to the forces already on board, fo the purpose of reducing New Netherland to his Majesty's obedience. In compliance with tha commission, the English General hath sent divers letters to your Honors, summoning this city an Fort Manhattans, promising, in case we voluntarily submit, that we shall not experience th least loss or damage, but, on the contrary, should we prove obstinate and headstrong, we must expect the aforesaid miseries and misfortunes.

These threats would not have been at all regarded, could your Honors or we, your petitioners, expect the smallest aid or succor. But (God help us!), whether we turn us for assistance to the north or to the south, to the east or to the west, 'tis all vain! On all sides are we encompassed and hemmed in by our enemies. If, on the other hand, we examine our internal strength, alas! it is so feeble and impotent that, unless we ascribe the circumstances to the mercy of God, we cannot sufficiently express our astonishment that the foe should have granted us so long a reprieve, inasmuch as he could have delivered us a prey and plunder to the soldiery after one summons.

We shall now examine your Honors' fortress. You know, in your own consciences, that it is incapable of making head three days against so powerful an enemy. Granting, even that it could hold out and contend against its assailants one, two, three, four, five or six months (which, to our sorrow, it cannot), it is still undeniable that it cannot save the smallest portion of our entire city, our property and (what is dearer to us), our wives and children, from total ruin, for, after considerable bloodshed, even the fort itself could not be preserved. Wherefore to prevent and arrest all the aforesaid misfortunes, we humbly, and in bitterness of heart implore your Honors not to reject the conditions of so generous a foe, but to be pleased to meet him in the speediest, best and most reputable manner. Otherwise (which God forbid), are we obliged, before God and the world, to protest against and call down on your Honors the vengeance of Heaven for all the innocent blood which shall be shed in consequence of your Honors' obstinacy, inasmuch as the Commissioners have to-day informed us, that the aforesaid English General has stated and threatened that he shall not wait longer than this day.

We trust your Honors will not question that to God, who seeks not the death of a sinner, belongs obedience, rather than to man. We feel certain, therefore, that your Honors will exhibit yourselves, in this pressing exigency and sorrowful season, as men and Christians, and conclude, with God's help, an honorable and reasonable capitulation which, may the Lord our God, in His great mercy, be pleased to grant us! Amen.

New York Colonial Documents Vol III, pages 74 through 77 has a list (two colums wide, four pages) listing those who signed the following document, "Rees Andries" is under the "R's" on the third page, well worth reading for those who would like a list of the many Dutch inhabitants, but omitted here to save space. The heading reads,

KEY TO THE NAMES OF PERSONS

OCCURRING

In the Early Dutch Records of Albany and Vicinity

PREFACE.

The student who searches the early Dutch records meets with many difficulties, none of which are more vexatious than their personal names. The majority of the First Settlers ordinarily used no surnames, some evidently had none. In these cases individuals were often distinguished by personal peculiarities, trades, &c., which, though sufficient for the time, give little or no aid to one tracing the pedigree of a family. It is only after great familiarity with the early writings and a careful noting of the use of surnames as they are sometimes subscribed to wills, conveyances, and other important papers that any connection can be established between a first settler and his later descendants.

But while many individuals had no surnames whatever apparently, a few families had two or more. Marcelis Janse Van Bommel was farmer of the burger and tapster's excise of liquors in Beverwyck many years. Some of his children took Marcelis as their surname, others Van Iveren; without a knowledge of this fact it would be quite impossible for his descendants to trace back their pedigree to him. A similar case occurred in the Albany branch of the Bratts. In the passage over from Holland one child was born at sea in a storm and he was named Storm Van Derzee, which epithet he and his descendants have since used as a surname.

It was not uncommon for the same individual to have two or more surnames and to use them indifferently. Jan Barentse Wemp [Wemple] was sometimes called Poest; he had a mill on the Poesten-kil which perhaps derived its name from him rather than from the Dutch word poesten. After his death in 1663 his widow Maritie Myndertse married Sweer Teunise. He had two surnames, Van Velsen and Van Westbroeck. Jan Fort of Niskayuna had the following aliases: Jan La Fort, Jan Vandervort and Jan Libbertee.

The change in the spelling and pronunciation of names is likewise a source of considerable embarrassment. Who would recognize the ancient Du Trieux (pronounced Du Troo) in the modern Truax, or Beaufils in Bovie, or Barrois in Barroway, or finally the familiar name of Jones in such laughable disguises as TSans, TJans, and Shawns.

The system of nomenclature in common use among the early Dutch settlers consisted in prefixing the child's to the father's Christian name, terminating in se or sen; in baptism but one name was usually given; the patronymic was used by custom in all cases, and in the absence of a surname was sometimes adopted as such. Thus the children of Rutger Jacobsen (Van Schoenderwoert or Van Woert) were respectively Margaret Rutgers, Engel Rutgers, and Harmen Rutgers, and Rutgers was subsequently assumed as the family name. The two sons of the First Settler Wynant Gerritse (Vander Poel) were Melgert Wynantse and Gerrit Wynantse. The First Settler, Harmen Tomase Hun (Van Amersfort) had a son named Tomas Harmense and a daughter Wyntie Harmense. The First Settlers Philip and David Schuyler, were more commonly called Philip and David Pieterse, being sons of Pieter Schuyler.

Occasionally two patronymics were used, as Samuel Arentse Samuelse Bratt; i. e., Samuel Bratt the son of Arent, who was the son of Samuel.

The use of surnames gradually increased among the Dutch from the time the Province was occupied by the English in 1664, and after the first quarter of the following century few names were written without the addition of a family name.

The following list is intended to serve as a key to such surnames as are occasionally or almost constantly omitted in the ancient Dutch Records of Albany and Schenectady. It is as nearly full as the compiler, after a somewhat careful reading of these documents, can make it. The names of persons without surnames, or if having them were not entered in those records, will not of course be found here; unfortunately these are somewhat numerous. Another embarrassment in the identification of persons arises from the fact, that some bear the same Christian name. When such cases occur in the following list, the dates annexed will sometimes aid in solving the difficulty. Thus the surname of Jacob Abrahamse, found in documents dating 1665–84, was Vosburg alias Kuyper; in those of date 1705, it was Van Deusen. But where there is little or no difference in the dates this help fails, and all is left to conjecture.

First of all commending my soul to God Almighty my Creator, to esus Christ my Redeemer and to the Holy Ghost my Sanctifier, nd my body to the earth from whence it came to be buried in a manner there to rest until my body and soul shall be reunited at the last day and enjoy the eternal bliss of immortality which God of His grace has prepared through the merit of our Savior for all those who unfeignedly repent and believe in Him; and as regards such temporal estate of lands, goods, horses, cattle, credits, etc., as the Lord has been pleased far above my deserts to grant me, I order, give and dispose of the same in manner hereinafter written:

2 I give to my eldest son Jan Hardick for his birthright as my eldest son thirty shillings current money of New York.

3 I give to my son Jan Hardick a certain piece of land lying on the east side of Hudson's river, now partly in his possession, beginning at a certain place called the Noorder Boght (north bend) at an elm tree at the corner of the fence, stretching thence into a vley (flat) by the first kill which is called the Diepe Leeghtese Kill (Deep Valley creek), then up along the south side of said kill to the fall on said kill, thence up to the corner of the fence or the land now already in his possession, thence to a bridge called the Pople (Poplar) bridge, thence to a bridge called the Swarte (Black) bridge, which bridge lies over a Spruyt (brook), thence along the north side of said spruyt to the land which my son Willem Hardick has bought of him, thence along the fence to the aforesaid elm tree, which I give him for him and his heirs and assigns forever.

4 I give and bequeath to my son Willem Hardick all my right, title and interest in and to my land lying at Claverack, excepting what I have already granted or bequeathed, for him, his heirs and assigns forever, on condition that he shall pay to my daughter Sarah Hardick, wife of Jonatan Rees, or her heirs the sum of thirty pounds current money of New York, and to the three children of my deceased daughter Gerrite, wife of Domine Iustus Valkenaer, deceased, fifteen pounds current money of New York, or else he can satisfy them by [giving] each twenty-five morgens of woodland, more or less, it being left to his choice to give either money or land, for them, or their heirs and assigns.

Contract of Willem Andriessen Rees to saw in the mill of Eldert Gerbertsen Cruyff at Bethlehem

[172 blank; 173] On this 30th day of April 1672 appeared before me, Adriaen van Ilpendam, notary public residing in New Albany, Albert Jansz Reeckman of the one part and Willem Andriesz Rees of the other part, who in love and friendship have agreed in manner following, to wit: Willem Andriesz acknowledges that he has agreed to saw in the mill at Bethlehem, the time to commence shortly after the first harvest as soon as there is sufficient water and not to end this year so long as any sawing can be done there. And should Eldert Gerbertsz this year not return from Holland, then said Willem Andriesz shall be bound to saw next spring till the end of May, if there is enough water till then. For which said Albert Jansz promises to pay said sawyer or to let him take the just fourth part of all that is sawed and in addition the sawyer shall have (during the sawing) nine guilders a week for his board. The foregoing the said contracting parties mutually promise to carry out and perform, binding thereto their persons and estates, nothing excepted, submitting the same to the jurisdiction of all lords, courts, tribunals and judges, and in confirmation thereof they have subscribed this in the presence of me, the notary, without fraud or deceit, in Albany, dated as above.

Early Records of the City + County of Albany + Colony of Rensselaerwyck (Vol. 3 1660-1696)

(Translated from the original Dutch by Jonathan Pearson (1918))

Contract of Willem Andriessen Rees to saw in the mill of Eldert Gerbertsen Cruyff at Bethlehem

[172 blank; 173] On this 30th day of April 1672 appeared before me, Adriaen van Ilpendam, notary public residing in New Albany, Albert Jansz Reeckman of the one part and Willem Andriesz Rees of the other part, who in love and friendship have agreed in manner following, to wit: Willem Andriesz acknowledges that he has agreed to saw in the mill at Bethlehem, the time to commence shortly after the first harvest as soon as there is sufficient water and not to end this year so long as any sawing can be done there. And should Eldert Gerbertsz this year not return from Holland, then said Willem Andriesz shall be bound to saw next spring till the end of May, if there is enough water till then. For which said Albert Jansz promises to pay said sawyer or to let him take the just fourth part of all that is sawed and in addition the sawyer shall have (during the sawing) nine guilders a week for his board. The foregoing the said contracting parties mutually promise to carry out and perform, binding thereto their persons and estates, nothing excepted, submitting the same to the jurisdiction of all lords, courts, tribunals and judges, and in confirmation thereof they have subscribed this in the presence of me, the notary, without fraud or deceit, in Albany, dated as above.

John Young came from Long Island prior to 1760. He married Dorcas, a daughter of Edward Hallock, and it was into his house that the latter moved when he first came to the town. He had a number of children, among them Alexander, Edward, and Phebe. Edward's children were John, David, Alexander, Edward, and William. Of these David resides in Dutchess County; Alexander and William both reside near Marlborough village. John H. Smith and Martha, children of John, reside in town.

Josiah Merritt was one of the oldest settlers of the town, and owned a tract of land extending from Buckley's Creek to "African Lane." This tract included about 400 acres. The Merritt family has always been active and influential in the town. John C. Merritt is in trade at Marlborough village, and has been postmaster several years.

James Quimby came from Westchester County before the Revolutionary war. He first located near the grist-mill of William Clark, and engaged in the milling business. His father, Levi, came with him, and owned a good deal of land. Isaac was a brother of James. To each of these sons Levi Quimby presented a farm, and both raised large families, as well as large crops. James Quimby, son of James, was born in 1803, and still resides in town.

Jacob Wood lived near the present residence of Nathaniel Hallock at an early day. He was a ship-carpenter by trade, and his house was built on ship-building principles, being what is known as "ship-lapped." Nathaniel Harcourt, another early settler, married one of his daughters, and Mrs. Nathaniel Hallock is a great-granddaughter.

Among the inhabitants of the town in 1779, as the records disclose, were David Merritt, Caleb Merritt, Henry Terboos, William Place, Josiah Merritt, John Lester, Allen Lester, Territ Lester, William Wilson, Henry Decker, in the south part of the precinct.

That William Mitchel, Henry Cropsy William Wygant, Gilbert Shaw, & Isaac Eckerly behave themselves well—And that the Col: conceives that the four first might safely & requests that they may be permitted to return home

Capt Hill appeared & assured the Boa. that Jonathan Stokum was a True Friend to the American Cause and that if the Charge of his threatening to burn Col: Luddenton's House should be proved against him, it would not appear to be the Effect of disaffection

Jonathan Stokum appeared before the Board & positively denied the above charge, and declared that he bore no Enmity to Col: Luddenton, but on the Contrary, had a great Esteem & regard for him, and the Board from the Character given of the said Stokum by Capt Hill, being induced to believe him sincere in his professions, yet for the greater security

Board adjourned

Present. M^r Benson
Col: Swartwout

Joseph Sheldon John Finch William Wing Thomas Briggs Roger Cutler Daniel Crane and Nathan Sheldon Enoch Hoag & Jacob Hogeboom apprehended

Col: Morehouse appeared, & informed the Board that he had apprehended & brought with him to this place the following persons, Viz^t Joseph Sheldon, John Finch William Wing, Tho^s Briggs, Roger Cutler, Daniel Crane, Nathan Sheldon, Enoch Hoag Jacob Hoogeboam whom he had apprehended on Wednesday night 26th Ins^t at the house of said Enoch Hoag, in consequence of information he had received from the Immissary that these persons were to assemble there at that Time with an intent to go off to the Enemy—That the Immissary informed Col: Morehouse that those Persons had told him that an officer in the neighbourhood who had been down to the Enemy was return'd who would be there also to see who would turn out as Volunteers

Joseph Sheldon Examined

Joseph Sheldon being Examined, saith, that he has long conceald himself for fear of the Rangers, that his intention in going to Hoags the night he was apprehended, was because it was a retired place, and as he was going Spalding overtook him,—that Spalding was on his way home, & the Examinant persuaded him to go with him to Hoags—When the Examinant came to Hoags, he found there Hoag, Brown, & Hoogeboam,—insists that his sole view in going to Hoags was to keep out of the way,—denies that the Meeting was concerted (to his knowledge) or that he had, neither does he know or believe that any of the others had intentions to go off to the Enemy—that no conversation passed during the Evening respecting any matter of that kind—that he knows seven of the persons apprehended, and admits that they are not Whigs—denies his ever having been with the Enemy—confesses he has been twice to Rhod Island, once to see his Friends, & at another time to avoid being taken as he understood he was to be sent to Exeter.—disavows all knowledge of any persons inlisting for the Enemies service—That as the Examinant & Spalding went together, Spalding call'd at his Brother Abijahs, that the Examinant proceeded slowly on and was shortly overtaken by Spalding, who brought with him John Finch, that when the Examinant Spalding & Finch, were ascending the Hill, they met Tho^s Briggs & Daniel Crane that the Examinant told the two last persons, that if they would walk with him back as far as Hoags, he would return with them again, as he did not intend to stay there long and does insist that his only motive in asking Spalding Brigs & Crane to go with him, was for the sake of Comp^a & Conversation

Order'd that the nine persons apprehended as above be committed to the Guard House.

D^r Hamiltons Estate to be sold.

This Board being informed that there is Sundry personal Estate of Doct: John Hamilton a person notoriously disaffected to the American Cause, & who is now supposd to be with the Enemy, having lately when apprehended as a Delinquent made his Escape from the Guards

Resolved, that Col: Andrew Morehouse be directed to Collect the said Estate and to dispose of the same at publick Auction, and after deducting the Charges of Sale, & the Expence of keeping an Horse, (part of the said Estate), to return the Monies together with proper Acco^t Sales to this Board, Provided, nothing in this Resolution shall be construed to authorize Col: Morehouse to receive any Debts due to the said John Hamilton

Lewis Bryant & Hen^y Erkenbregh apprehended

A Letter from the Committee of the North East Precinct informing that they had apprehended & sent under Guard to this Board, Henry Erkenbright & Lewis Bryant upon suspicion of their their being concerned in the rescue

A serial article beginning in Vol. 10 of The SARATOGA Copied at WI SHS 22 Apr 1999-njz. This is part of a search for information, since the Averill Genealogy is vague about Philo Averill's early adult years, his first two wives, Betsy Bordman and Charlotte Baker, and the children of those marriages, as well as the background of his third wife, our Mrs. Rebecca (Rice)(Cropsey) Averill.

This shows a John Rice owning land at Stillwater, a probable relative, but no Cropsey though a Seth Crapo (not shown) was 1794-5 elections inspector at Ballston. Residents' surnames show mixed ethnic backgrounds, but quite a few may be identified as coming from Litchfield Co. CT, such as Daniel Boardman, Cogswells, Browns, etc. Brother Isaac ~~Calvin who lived at Hadley, married a widow Beach~~. Gunn Philo & Rebecca sold a home in Greenfield to a Comstock. Was "Crapsie" of early Albany Dutch descent?

Transfers of land since 1791 (and some earlier) are recorded at the County Clerk's Office, Ballston Spa, and are properly indexed by grantor and grantee. Do not write to that office. If you cannot go in person, you can search the records on microfilm, available from the Genealogical Society of Utah:

Deeds, 1-229 (1774-1901).
Mortgage Records, 1-40 (1791-1851).
Loan Commissioners' Mortgages, 1-7 (1792-1879).

Additional early land records are on microfilm at NYSA.

MANUSCRIPTS

The two largest collections of manuscript material, including family bible records, are held by the Saratoga County Historian and the Saratoga County Historical Society. The latter collection is described in the Catalogue of the Manuscript Collection (Ballston Spa, 1979), available for $2.40 postpaid.

MAPS

Manzer's Bibliography (pp. 493-506) lists maps, atlases, and perspective views. The more important maps, useful for locating places of residence, are:

1856. Samuel Geil, Map of Saratoga County, N.Y.
1866. S.N. Beers, New Topographical Atlas of Saratoga County, N.Y.
1876. F.W. Beers and Louis H. Cramer, Combination Atlas of Saratoga and Ballston.
1884-1951. Sanborn Map and Publishing Company, Ltd. Insurance Maps of New York. Refer to Manzer, p. 497, for details.
1890. Farmers' Pocket Directory and Map of Saratoga County, N.Y.

MUNICIPAL RECORDS

County government records are chiefly in the hands of the County Clerk. Supervisors' Minutes, 1791-1802, are also on microfilm at NYSA, with a typewritten index on file at SCHS.

The towns, villages and cities have a vast amount of records, such as minute books and tax rolls, which may have some genealogical value. Only two municipalities have guides to their records, and one is outdated:

The Records of Ballston Spa, Saratoga County (Albany, 1921).
Teresa Feuerstein, Guide to the Archives, City of Saratoga Springs, N.Y. (Saratoga Springs, 1978).

In most cases (Saratoga Springs being a notable exception) these records are in the care of the clerk of the town, village or city. The existing municipalities and their governmental histories are as follows:

Ballston: district 1775, town 1788
Ballston Spa: village 1807
Charlton: town from Ballston 1792
Clifton Park: town from Halfmoon 1828
Corinth: town from Hadley 1818
Corinth: village 1886

ROBERT ROYCE

New London, Conn.

Robert[1] Royce, born in England, died at New London, Conn., in 1676; married Mary ———, who died at Wallingford, Conn., in 1697.

He may be the Robert Royce who on 4 June 1634 married Mary Sims at Martock, co. Somerset, Eng. He is not the Robert Royce who died at Boston prior to Oct. 1668, leaving a widow Elizabeth, who by that date had become the wife of Michael Tarne.

He is first noted in Stratford, Conn., where several pieces of land were recorded to him as Robert "Rise" on 16 Sept. 1658. He was living there on 7 Oct. 1656, when the Court at New Haven acted on the estate of Humphrey Spinning (or Spinage) and the record mentions that a son of "old Goodman Rice of Stratford" was then about to marry Mary Spinning.

He moved to New London, probably the following spring and before his lands at Stratford were recorded there, for on 26 Aug. 1657, the town of

The Royces/Rices (Shown here) are all in East CT

New London gave him land in addition to the homelot he had bought of John Elderkin. In 1660 he was Constable of New London, and in 1662 and 1667 was chosen sealer of leather. He was rate collector, 1667, and a Townsman (Selectman), 1668. He was a juryman in 1666, and a Grand Juror for New London in 1668. On 25 Feb. 1666/7, he was chosen to keep the ordinary.

He was Deputy for New London to the Connecticut General Court, May 1661. [Conn. Col. Rec., 1-365.] Qualifying ancestor, Society of Colonial Wars.

He and his children had many deeds recorded in New London; on 29 Apr. 1670, his wife Mary signed with him. His inventory was presented in Court, 22 Sept. 1676, and the record mentions, without naming, five sons and three daughters. Deeds of the heirs prove who the sons were and one dated 4 Feb. 1687/8 names the widow Mary and son Jonathan.

His widow lived in old age at Wallingford with one of the sons who settled there, and administration on her estate was granted, 14 July 1697, to her son, (Ensign) Samuel Royce. [New Haven County Court Records, 1-251.]

Jonathan[2] Royce, born , died at Norwich, Conn., in 1690; married first, about the end of 1656, Mary Spinning, who died about 1658; married second, at New London, in June 1660, Deborah Calkin, born at Gloucester, Mass., 18 Mar. 1643/4, died at Lebanon, Conn., 2 Oct. 1723 (town record), or 2 Oct. 1724, aged 83 (gravestone), daughter of Hugh and Ann (———) Calkin. She married second, John Woodward of Lebanon, Conn.

He was made a freeman of Connecticut, Oct. 1663. His second marriage, and the children by his second wife, were entered in the Norwich records. The inventory of his estate was exhibited in Court, 22 Sept. 1690. Distribution was ordered to the heirs, including the son John, and John was also named in the estate records of his brother David who died unmarried in 1711.

Bishop Meade — vol II

Families of Virginia

Chapel, two acres of ground being given by Colonel Hugh Nelson, of York, the then owner of the Burwell tract, and the materials moved there. Again it was resolved to build at Carney's Spring, and the materials removed a second time. The result of the controversy was that no such church was ever built, though the money was in hand. The war soon came on, and at the end of it the funds were delivered into the hands of the overseers of the poor. In the year 1762, a new stone church was contracted for in Winchester,—the same which was afterward sold in order to build the present church.

Having thus brought down the history of the church-buildings to the time of the Revolution, we will now give a list of the lay readers and vestrymen from the year 1764, when the vestry-book commences, merely premising that the county and parish of Frederick were in 1769 divided into the counties of Dunmore, afterward changed to Shenandoah, Frederick, and Berkeley, and into the parishes of Beckford, Frederick, and Norbone.

Shenandoah Valley VA

Names of the vestrymen from the year 1764 until the year 1780, when no more meetings of the vestry take place until 1785:—Isaac Hite, John Hite, John Greenleaf, Thomas Rutherford, James Keith, John Neville, Charles Smith, James Wood, Jacob Hite, Thomas Wadlington, Burr Harrison, Thomas Swearingen, Van Swearingen, Angus McDonald, Philip Bush, Frederick Conrad, George Rice, (see over) Alexander White, James Barnett, Marquis Calmes, John McDonald, Edward Snickers, Warner Washington, Joseph Holmes, Benjamin Sedwick, Edmund Taylor, John Smith, Samuel Dowdal. Of these, Philip Bush and some others, in consequence of some unknown difficulties, resigned in the year 1774, though all of them resumed their seats except Mr. Bush. Lord Fairfax in the year 1775 made a deed to Mr. Bush, Frederick Conrad, and others, for the lot on which the Lutheran church stood, though Mr. Conrad continued as vestryman until the year 1780, when the vestries were all dissolved by Act of Assembly. James Wood, who was both clerk and vestryman, resigned in 1777 and entered the army. He rose to the rank of General, and was afterward Governor of the State, and represented the parish two years in Convention while Governor. James Barnett resigned in 1773 and joined the Baptists.

The lay readers during all this period, at the different chapels, were John Ruddell, James Barnett, John Barns, Henry Nelson, James Graham, Henry Frencham, Morgan Morgan, John James, William Dobson, William Howard, John Lloyd.

This shows Capt George Rice of Frederick Co. VA — the man usually encountered on Rev. War lists. He emigrated there from Ireland!

Note: This overlaps New York Rolls & merits further study. At that time New York claimed what is now Vermont, though New Hampshire grants had been made there. It is conceivable that the above includes some of our Rice kin.

Martha he had Martha, b. 14 Jan. 1662; Josiah, 3 May 1663; Caleb, 1666; and this w. Martha d. 4 Jan. 1669; by third w. Mary, by Bond thot. d. of Capt. His w. d. 1749, and he d. 28 Nov. 1753, aged 95 yrs. and one mo. less a week, allow for change of style. By the common tendency to exagger. he is made 97 in Geneal. Reg. XIII. 140. Sev. of his ch. reach. old age. Philip, Boston 1640, is call. a tailor, on his unit. with the ch. 21 Nov. 1641. He d. prob. in 1665. Phineas, Sudbury, youngest s. of Joseph first of the same, m. 2 Oct. 1707, Eliz. d. of Daniel Willard of the same, had sev. ch. by her, wh. d. 9 Mar. 1761, but I kn. neither names nor dates, and he d. 4 Sept. 1768. Shattuck judicious. reduced. Farmer reports that he left 8 s. wh. liv. to gr. ages, showing how easy tradition borrowed for him the facts of Edmund, of wh. he is not kn. to be a relat. Robert, Boston, spelled Roys, Roise, and Royce, in dif. rec. freem. 1 Apr. 1634, had prob. come 1631, as he is No. 137 on the list of ch. mem. by w. Eliz. had Joshua, b. 14, bapt. 16 Apr. 1637; Nathaniel, bapt. 24 Mar. tho. town rec. says b. 1 Apr. 1639; and Patience, b. 1 Apr. 1642, bur. next week; Nathaniel d. young. His wid. m. I presume, Michael Tarne, for they call. Joshua R. their s. when in 1668 the three unit. to mortg. est. Perhaps there were both Rice and Roise. See Roise. Robert, Stratford 1656, was of New London after, freem. 1669. Samuel, Sudbury, s. of Edmund the first, b. in Eng. m. 8 Nov. 1655, Eliz. King, had Eliz. b. 26 Oct. 1656, wh. m. 2 Jan. 1677, Peter Haynes; Hannah, wh. m. . . . Hubbard; Joshua; Edmund; Esther, 1665, wh. m. 1 Nov. 1683, Daniel Hubbard; Samuel, 1667; Mary, 1669; Edward, 1672; Abigail, 1674; and Joseph. He had rem. to Marlborough, m. 1668, sec. w. Thomas, Sudbury, s. of Edmund the first, b. in Eng. by w. Mary had Grace, wh. d. 1654; Thomas b. 30 June 1654; Mary, 4 Sept. 1656, m. 1678, Joseph White; Peter, 24 Oct. 1658; Nathaniel, 3 Jan. 1660; Sarah, 15 Jan. 1662, m. John Adams; was freem. 1660, rem. to Marlborough, had there Ephraim; Gershom, said to be b. 9 May 1667; James, 1669; Jonas, 1673; Grace, 1675, m. 1702, Nathaniel Moore; perhaps Elisha; and Frances, wh. m. an Allen; and in Geneal. Reg. XIII. 140, was made to live 96 yrs. His will was pro. 1681, so that we may be sure his age was by ten yrs. magnif. by his s. as in Geneal. Reg. XIII. 140; and the will of his wid. was pro. 1715. Thomas, Marlborough, eldest s. of the preced. by w. Ann m. 1681, had Jedediah, b. 1690; Abiel; Ann; Arthur; Adonijah; Perez; Vashti; Beriah; Jason; Thomas; and Charles. In Geneal. Reg. XIII. 140, his age is call. 94; but my doubt is so strong, that I wish to kn. the day, mo. and yr. when he d. Timothy, Concord, freem. 1690, m. 27 Apr. 1687, Abigail, d. of John Marrett of Cambridge. Twenty-four of this name had been gr. at Harv. in 1849, and six at Yale.

All the history books have the entertaining tale of Rev Manasseh Cutler & MA Rev war generals' efforts to secure land in Ohio, ostensibly to benefit Rev War vets, and his intrigues with gov't insiders. This finally resulted in the settlement of Marietta on the Muskingum River in SE Ohio. Could this be our Capt Rice, there by June 1788 – perhaps a stretch, but possible ?? Probably not, for Rebecca, age 13 in 1788, could not have stayed behind in NY. Did he go back to NY later?

Re: Rice Genealogies

As of April 1999 I have not able to find any reference to our Captain George Rice (Rebecca Rice Averill's father) except in the Averill Genealogy and am beginning to suspect his first name wasn't really George. Since she was born 1775 in New York, one would expect to find him there, or at least in Colonial Records of NY. There was a younger George, a Cornet in Onondaga Co, possibly her brother. There was also a Captain George Rice in Muskingham Ohio ca 1788 – not far from Marietta which was settled by New England & New York people. Could he have gone there?

As all the bibliography shows, various Rices were early N.E. settlers & it is possible some came early to NY, but when one reads genealogies it appears most were descended from Deacon Edmund Rice of Sudbury/Marlborough. That family was extremely prolific, averaging about 10 children in each family in every generation, heavy on sons – within 2 or 3 generations there were hundreds of them, all from the same immigrant couple.

The Rice Genealogy, under those circumstances could not follow every single son in every generation. No George of the right age to be ours is mentioned in it, but that does not prove if he was one of Edmund's descendants or not. According to the "Laws of Probability" one might presume that is likely, but that is not a surety.

Because genealogies of that family are so easy to find the following are collected here JUST IN CASE.

Desc. of Thomas Farr, by Edith B Sumner (1955)

RICE

DEACON EDMUND^1 RICE was born in England about 1594, probably in Stanstead, Suffolk. He was either the younger brother or son of the Henry Rice who married Elizabeth Frost, sister of Thomasine Frost, in 1605. The marriage of Edmund Rice and Thomasine Frost was recorded on the register of St.Mary's, in Bury, Suffolk, Oct. 15, 1618. She was born in Stanstead Aug. 11, 1600, the daughter of a wealthy "clothier," a cloth manufacturer, Edward Frost. She died in Sudbury, Mass., on June 13, 1654, and Edmund married second, in Sudbury on March 1, 1655/6, Mercy [Hurd], widow of Thomas Brigham of Cambridge, Mass. She died on Dec. 8, 1653, in Sudbury. Mercy had two daughters and three sons by her first marriage. Edmund was buried in Sudbury on May 3, 1663, "age about 69," recorded in Marlboro, Mass. Mercy's third husband was William Hunt, whom she married in 1664. She died,1693. See FROST.

The Rice family lived first in Stanstead, Suffolk, later in Great Barkhamstead, Hertfordshire. They emigrated to New England about 1638, and were settled in Sudbury by 1639. Edmund was made freeman there in 1640. He was a selectman in 1639, 1644 and subsequently, was made deacon of the church in 1640, and represented Sudbury at the General Court at Boston in 1654.

He was one of the substantial men of the plantation, owning lands in and out of the town, some by grant of the Court. He shared in all the divisions of uplands and commons, and the total number of acres which he received as an original inhabitant was 247 acres. His first dwelling in Sudbury was on the old North street. This he sold in 1642 to John Moore, and bought of Widow Mary Axtell six acres of land with her dwelling house, in the south part of the town. Some years afterwards he bought of Philemon Whale his house and nine acres adjacent to the Axtell place. All this together formed the old Rice homestead in Sudbury, which remained in the family for many years. In 1654, he deeded it to his son EDWARD, who conveyed it to sons JOHN and Edmund. In 1647 he took a ten year lease on the Glover farm, mostly in what is now Framingham, and in 1657 he bought 200 acres more. In 1659, he bought the Dunster farm.

In 1656 he signed the petition for the new town of Marlborough, where he received grants of a houselot of 50 acres, and other lands in proportion, removing to the town in 1660.

His inventory amounted to £567.14.08, the house, etc., to £170. Administration was granted to Widow Mercy Rice, 1663.

This page shows Edmund Rice had 52 grandchildren surnamed Rice. Assuming they were boys having up to 10 children each, it would be practically impossible to trace them ALL!

The settlement proposed that the widow pay to the eight elder children (not named), to the eldest £40, to each of the other seven, £20, and to the two youngest children £10 each.

DEACON EDWARD^2 RICE was baptized in Stanstead, county Suffolk, England, on Oct. 26, 1622. He married in Massachusetts about 1646, Agnes Bent, born in Penton-Grafton, parish of Wayhill, Hampshire, England, the daughter of John Bent. Edward died on Aug. 15, 1712, "age abt. 93," and Agnes died on June 4, 1713, "ae 83," both in Marlborough, Mass. See BENT.

In 1654 his father deeded him lands and houses, "near the south bounds of Sudbury," part being "between the Spring and John Bent's." This formerly belonged to Philemon Whale, Hugh Drury, etc. Here he lived until he removed to Marlborough in

The Genealogist 2: 221-3 says earlier Rices were in Leicestershire & Northumberland & could have easily moved to Suffolk.

1665. Like his father and brother Henry, he signed the petition in 1656 for the new town of Marlborough. He was chosen deacon of the Marlborough church.

He and "Anna" conveyed on April 1, 1686, to son Edmond of Sudbury, half of the farm which he had purchased of his father Edmund Rice, together with land which he had bought of his brother Benjamin. He gave the other half of the farm to his son JOHN of Sudbury, "lying within the bounds of Sudbury, near the Spring." This deed was acknowledged on April 16, 1706, and recorded on Aug. 16, 1734. JOHN later deeded his half to his brother Edmund. A deed from Edward Rice to son Jacob Rice in 1701, was signed by Edward and "Agnes" Rice.

He is said to have been survived by 119 living descendants at his death.

JOHN^{3} RICE, the eldest son of the eldest son of the immigrant, was born in Sudbury, Mass., Dec. 20, 1651, before his father removed to Marlborough. He married in Sudbury on Nov. 2, 1674, Tabitha, daughter of John Stone. She was born about 1655. John died in Sudbury on Sept. 6, 1719, survived by Tabitha. See STONE.

His father deeded him half of his farm, "lying within the bounds of Sudbury, near the Spring," the deed acknowledged on April 16, 1706, but not recorded until Aug. 16, 1734. John deeded his half to his brother Edmund, who then had the whole farm.

John was a subscriber to "Prince's Chronicles,"* and said to have enjoyed historical reading.

He died intestate, his widow Tabitha and son Moses being appointed administrators on Jan. 29, 1719/20. The inventory of his estate was dated Sept. 17, 1719, "widow Tabitha being aged and infirm, made oath at Weston."

Apparently Tabitha lived with one of her children in Weston, after the death of her husband, perhaps with ANNA.

RICE.

"An illuminated pedigree of the family of Rice in possession of Lord Dynevor, drawn and attested in the year 1600 by Ralph Brooke, York Herald, and continued by different hands to the present time, makes Sir Rhys Ap-Thomas Fitz-Urian, K. G., to be the eighteenth in descent from Vryan Reged, Lord of Kidwelly, Carunllon and Yskenen, in South Wales, and Margaret La Faye, his wife, daughter of Gorlois, Duke of Cornwall.

"Sir Rhys Ap-Thomas, 19th in descent from Gorlois, was founder of the English house of Rice. Of this distinguished person, Fuller, in his 'Worthies,' writes: 'Sir Rhys Ap-Thomas, of Elmalin, in Carmathanshire, was never more than a knight, yet little less than a Prince of his native country.'

"To King Henry VII., on his landing with a small force at Milford Haven, Sir Rhys repaired with a considerable accession of choice soldiers, marching with them to Bosworth field, where he right valiantly behaved himself. That thrifty King afterwards made him a Knight of the Order and well might have given him a garter, by whose effectual help he had received a crown. At the battle of Bosworth, however, Henry made him a Knight Banneret, and in the 21st year of that King's reign he was elected a Knight companion of the most noble order of the Garter. In the next reign he was Captain of the Light Horse at the battle of Therouenne, and at the seige of Tourney, in 1513. Sir Rhys was the son of Thomas Ap-Griffith and his first wife, the daughter and heir of Sir John Griffith, of Abernarlais.

"Sir Griffith Rice, son and heir of Sir Rhys Ap-Thomas, was made Knight of the Bath at the marriage of Arthur, Prince of Wales, in 1501.

"Deacon Edmund Rice was modestly descended from Sir Griffith Rice, Knight of the Bath (1501), being his great-great-grandson, and was therefore 24th in descent from the Duke of Cornwall, and 23d in the male line from Vryan Reged. And thus the pedigree of the descendants of Deacon Edmund Rice can be certainly and accurately traced (See Burke's Peerage; Lodge's Peerage, etc.,) for 33 generations. Deacon Edmund Rice being of the 24th.

"Let us be content with the eleven hundred years covered by the thirty-three generations from the great Lord Kidwelly.

"Deacon Edmund Rice was born in Buckinghamshire, England, in the year 1594, probably in the town of Sudbury, which was only eight miles north of London, for he gave the name of Sudbury to his home town in Massachusetts in 1638.

"In 1627, the Deacon and his wife, Tamazine, were living in the village of Berkhampstead, 28 miles north of London, in Hertfordshire. Their first three children were doubtless born in Sudbury, Bucks, and the Parish Register of Berkhamstead contains the record of five others who were baptized in that Parish. The Deacon and his wife, with seven of these children, (one had died and one was born during the voyage) landed in Massachusetts in 1638."

(Ref.: "By the Name of Rice," by Charles Elmer Rice, Alliance, Ohio, 1911.)

} 2. Edmund Rice, the immigrant ancestor, was born in Barkhamstead, Hertfordshire, England, about 1594.

He probably came to Massachusetts early in 1638; he was proprietor and selectman of Sudbury in 1639.

The village plot of Sudbury, now Wayland, was laid out in 1639, and Rice was one of the first to build his house there. His house lot was on Old North Street, near Millbrook. He received his share in the meadow lands in the division, September 4, 1639, April 20 and November 18, 1640. He shared also in the division of all the uplands, and had altogether two hundred and forty-seven acres in grants.

He had eleven acres in the south part of the town between Timber Neck and Mr. Glover's farm. This lay near the spring and he sold part of it to Thomas Axtell and part also to Philemon Whale.

He leased the Dunster farm on the east shore of Lake Cochituate in 1642 for six years.

Later he bought the Philemon Whale house and nine acres of land forming the nucleus of the Rice homestead, where the family has held reunions in recent years, near the famous spring.

Rice leased the Glover farm in Framingham, September 26, 1647, for ten years, and April 8, 1657, bought the Jennison farm of two hundred acres in Sudbury, extending from the Dunster farm to the Weston line, and on some of this tract his descendants have lived ever since.

He and his son bought the Dunster farm, June 24, 1659. Besides these grants and purchases the general court gave him fifty acres at Rice's End in 1652, and eighty acres near Beaver Dam in 1659 in Framingham.

He was prominent in public affairs; served on the committee to apportion the Sudbury River meadows, September 4, 1639; was admitted freeman May 13, 1642; deputy to the general court in 1643 and 1654; deacon of the church in 1648; selectman in 1639 and in 1644; and various other positions of trust and honor.

He was one of the fifty-six petitioners from Sudbury for the grant of what became the town of Marlborough, Mass.; received a house lot and other lands there and removed thither in 1660.

He deposed April 3, 1656, that his age was about sixty-two years.

He d. May 3, 1663, aged, according to the record, sixty-nine years.

A petition for the division of his estate was signed June 16, 1663, by his widow Mercy, eight elder and two younger children.

He m., first, in England, Tamasin........, who d. at Sudbury, June 13, 1654; m., second, Mercy (Hurd) Brigham, widow of Thomas Brigham.

His son, Thomas Rice (2), b. about 1620, in England, m. abt. 1650, Mary King.

Rice

EDMUND RICE, the pioneer ancestor of the Rice family of Worcester, Massachusetts, was born in Barkhamstead, Hertfordshire County, England, in 1594. There is no record of his embarkation for this country, nor in what ship he came, or at what place he first arrived. The first we find of him is at Sudbury, Massachusetts, in 1639, where he was a proprietor, with a wife and seven of his children who came to America with him. He lived on the east side of the Sudbury river, in that part of what is now Wayland, having had three divisions of land granted him. He was one of the leaders of the community, being elected a selectman in 1644, and in subsequent years. He was deacon of the Sudbury church in 1648, and one of the thirteen petitioners in 1656 who besought the General Court for a new plantation. Their petition was granted and the plantation allotted to them eight miles westward was incorporated by the name of Marlboro in 1660. There he removed with his family, and had a house-lot of fifty acres granted him by the proprietors in the westerly part of the town, a short distance from the ancient "Williams Tavern". Edmund Rice was married twice, his first wife known only by the name Tamazin, who died at Sudbury in 1654. He married second, Mercy Heard (or Hurd) Brigham, the widow of Thomas Brigham (the progenitor of the New England Brighams). He had eleven children, among them Thomas.

Thomas Rice, of the second generation in America, was born in England in 1622. He came to this country with his parents and lived in Sudbury until the family removed to Marlboro, Massachusetts. He lived in Marlboro the remainder of his life and died there in 1681. Thomas Rice married Mary King who bore him thirteen children, the seventh child named Ephraim, the ancestor of William Ellis and Albert White Rice of Worcester, and the eleventh child named Jonas, noted as the first settler in the third and final settlement of Worcester in 1713.

Possible ancestor of George + Rebekah Rice

Ephraim Rice, of the third generation, was born at Marlboro, Massachusetts, in 1665. He moved to Sudbury after his marriage to Hannah Livermore, where she died in 1724. He married second, Mary Noyes in 1725. He was granted by the General Court, thirty acres of land in Worcester, Massachusetts, but never resided there. His death occurred in 1732 and he was buried in Sudbury. He had nine children by his first wife, one of them a son named John, described below, and one child by his second wife.

John Rice, of the fourth generation, was born in Sudbury, Massachusetts, in 1704 and died there in 1711. He was the owner of a large tract of land in Sudbury and engaged in farming. He was married three times; his first wife, Sarah Dunton of Sudbury, by whom he was childless; his second wife, Anne Sanderson whom he married in 1741, who bore him two children, and his third wife, a woman named Thankful (her surname unknown) who bore him nine more children, one of then named Peter.

Peter Rice, of the fifth generation, was born in Sudbury, Massachusetts, in 1755. Early in life, he moved to Spencer, Massachusetts, where he later married Olive Baldwin, the daughter of Major Asa Baldwin of Spencer. He served eight months during the Revolutionary War, and belonged to Seth Washburn's Company, J. Ward's Regiment of Spencer, that marched from Leicester to Boston and fought at Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775. Peter Rice died in Spencer in 1813, and his widow died nine months later. They had thirteen children, the youngest child named William.

William Rice, of the sixth generation, was born in Spencer, Massachusetts, in 1803. He was a prominent citizen of Spencer and inherited the homestead of his father, where he engaged in farming for several years. He married Emeline Draper, the daughter of James Draper of Spencer, and after his marriage moved to Ware, Massachusetts, where his son William Ellis was born. He later removed to Worcester, where his wife died in 1854, in her forty-ninth year. William Rice resided at 27 Chestnut Street, where he died in 1882, leaving seven children, among them William Ellis.

William Ellis Rice, of the seventh generation, was born in Ware, Massachusetts, in 1833. He moved to Worcester with his

Re: Philo + Rebekah (Rice) Averill

There are discrepancies in The Avery genealogy -

Re: Philo + Family to 1800

The 1800 US census of Columbia Co NY shows Philo Averill as a widower with 5 children: (1st column)

1 girl 10-16	Melissa b ca 1788-9? m. Timothy Haskell
1 boy 10-16	Orilla - really Orville? b ca 1789-90? (Orville is a family name in later gen.) Joined Shakers in NY
boy -10	Rowlen Green b. ca 1794-5 m. ? d 1816 Indiana - widow + small Charles ret. to NY girl -10	Betsey b ca 1797? - joined Shakers in NY?
girl -10	Electa b ca 1799?

Assuming 2nd wife Charlotte (Baker) Averill was not 16 after having 3 children or so (pretty unlikely) then she must be deceased.

Avery assumed the children were younger (Electa b 1807 - impossible). -

Later Melissa moved to Michigan, as did her cousins - children of

Re: Philo's brother Moses + Fam,

Philo's brother Moses. Moses married at Pawlet VT, Cong: CH in 1805 to wife Cynthia (Russell) Averill. (1790 Census Pawlet VT with wife + 2 girls + 2 boys under 16) - moved to Salina, Onondaga Co NY where He died felling a tree in 1811 on his 640 acre farm, leaving a large family + widow (one son, Dr Isaac Averill became MD) His widow, her brother Samuel Halenbeck + all the children of both families migrated to East side of Lake Michigan around Muskegon. They were in Wayne Co MI / W. end of Lake Erie for a while first. Philo's dtr, Melissa (Averill) Haskell + family eventually went south.

The US Census also showed Moses in 1810 (32101-21310) at Onondaga Co. NY. Earlier 1781 Bennington Co VT - Rupert TWP also shows a Moses Averill

An AIS search of early Rices showed a George Rice in Saratoga Co NY - 1810 (page 150) 22010-01010. This man could be a brother of Rebecca, but could not be her father - under 45 in 1810. Rebecca born 1775.

Made chart - other Rices listed next page - Capt George Rice might have been from Penna, RI or the south. However, from looking at the attached chart, perhaps he was dead by 1790, unless he was an army regular and went to the NW Territories. Who was the Geo. Rice in Muskingum OH in 1808? Philo + Rebecca are said to have lived in Ohio a short time before they went to Indiana. Muskingum Co (Zanesville - Marietta area) settled by New Englanders. Averills from CT (thru VT + NY) Rices - Worcester Co MA etc. to VT + NY).

AVERILL FAMILY

A copy of the "Remonstrance of the People of New Netherland to the Director-General and Council" still lies at the Hague in the West India files, dated 5 September 1664. Very sorrowful in tone, it sounds as much like a prayer--"God help us!--as a sad explanation. It was signed by 93 individuals, though seven of these made their mark, seemingly of Manhattan. It states that of the 1500 inhabitants including women and children for whom they fear dire consequences, there were only 250 men able to bear arms, and that four English frigates filled with soldiers are at Nyack to oppose them. The fort would probably last only about three days if that option were taken, with "populous New England" ready to supply fresh troops at any time. The English General has threatened he will not wait another day. ..."Amen."

A copy of the Articles of Capitulation is in the files at Albany, "subscribed at the Governor's Bowry 27 August 1664," by the persons on the original list. They do not sound overly harsh:

1. We consent that the States-General or West India Company shall freely enjoy all farms and houses (except such as are in the forts) and that within six months they shall have free liberty to transport all such arms and ammunition as now do belong to them, or else they shall be paid for them.

2 All public houses shall continue for the uses they now are for.

3. All people shall still continue free denizens and enjoy their lands, houses, goods, shipps, wheresoever they are within this country, and dispose of them as they please.

4. If any inhabitant have a mind to remove himself he shall have a year and six weeks from this day to remove himself, wife, children, servants, goods, and to dispose of his lands here.

5. If any officer of State or Public Minister of State, have a mind to go for England, they shall be transported, freight free, in his Majesty's frigates, when these frigates shall return thither.

Quite a number of inhabitants did opt to return home to the Netherlands, but the majority seemed to be quite resigned, if not pleased, to remain under English rule. The four-page list, two columns wide, includes Andries Rees under the "R"s. There is not room here to include it, but for those interested in research would be very informative. * The heading reads:

Names of the Dutch who swore Allegiance after the surrender of New York. "A Catalogue Alphabeticall of y^{e} Names of such Inhabitants of New York &c^{e} as tooke the Oath to bee true subjects, to His Majestie, October the 21st, 22nd, 24th and 26th dayes 1664.

The only other document I have found regarding Andries Rees was dated nine years later (16 October 1673) in New Netherland. It shows where he probably lived.* It would have been extremely close to the fort (almost on Broadway?) in present Manhattan. It appears that Article I of the Articles of Capitulation, regarding clearing away houses and farms within the forts, had not been sufficiently complied with, or that there was later encroachment. Five government men with Dutch names issued a memorandum from the fort, which starts thusly,

> "Whereas Fort William Hendrick and the City of New Orange situate on Manhatans Island is seriously encumbered and weakened by the presence of houses, gardens and orchards which lie so close under its walls and bulwarks as make it impossible to defend properly........ "

Nine identical letters went out, except for amounts and exact description of what was to be removed. Each was to be reimbursed for the value of what was given up. A sample letter to the first on the list was shown. The recipients were Willem van Vredenburgh, Gerrit Jansen Roos, Peter Stoutenburgh, Ephraim Hermans, Jacobus van de Water, George Cobbet, The Lutheran Congregation, Gerrit Hendrickse Butcher, and Peter Jansen Mesier. The letter to Mr. Butcher, next to last on the list, interests us the most. He was to be reimbursed fl.2,140 in wampum for "the house and lot in the Smithstreet next to Andries Rees which belongeth to William Pattisson..." Rees, who lived, one supposes, on the same street that contained a blacksmith(?) shop, was apparently just far enough away from the fort to be in compliance. That was one of the more costly removals. Though this manuscript does not say so, one might infer from it that Rees was a tradesman of some sort, if not himself a smith.

I suppose a good smithy in those days could have made saws? If Andries had a son Willem (some have suggested this is he, so I suppose so) the young man had gone up the Hudson the year before this last incident. Looking at a modern Atlas, one can see that Onesquethaw Creek, which looks to be of appropriate size to handle a good-sized sawmill and float logs to the Hudson, runs through that area. There is no way now to tell how many logs were provided by the lumberjacks, but for Willem to keep the proceeds from milling one-fourth of them sounds rather profitable, does it not?

Where Willem went after his stint at Mr. Cruyll's mill has not been learned, nor whether he had any brothers. It is doubtful he was still alive in 1720 but some of the following may have been sons or grandsons. As mentioned, the Dutch West India Company set up manors on the Hudson, and the English continued the practice. The old patroons generally were rather reasonable in their demands on their tenants, some of whom probably felt as though they owned their farms, but they did not. Often leases were for very long times--for "three lives" has been cited as a long example, which could have been as long as a century. Rents consisted of a percentage of the produce plus certain yearly work for the lord of the manor, just as in England. Still, though it might not even be as profitable, English colonist wanted their own land and so did some of the Dutch--the system retarded settlement in the long run. More and more managed by hook or crook to get land of their own. (Like Casper Jacobse Hallenbeck mentioned on page 73 of this book, who bought from the Van Rensselaers) The Rees family somehow managed to do the same.

To determine how many landholders there were in 1720, the government took a census of men who owned land, and this is how we know where members of our clan were then living. * Jonathan Rees then held land acquired from the northern part of Livingston Manor. Andries Rees, John Rees, and Willem Rees were landowners at Claverack (later Columbia County) one of the most fertile and beautiful places along the Hudson. (Philo Averill's sister Patty lived there later, and it was still beautiful.) To update you on the "Halenbeeks" in 1720, Jacob and Johannis (plus a John Casperse who might have been related) were all at "Coxhacky and Cats Kills."

AVERILL FAMILY

Data about the immigrant Dutchman Andries Rees, the takeover by the British, and some of his probable descendants:

A copy of the "Remonstrance of the People of New Netherland to the Director-General and Council" still lies at the Hague in the West India files, dated 5 September 1664. Very sorrowful in tone, it sounds as much like a prayer--"God help us!--as a sad explanation. It was signed by 93 individuals, though seven of these made their mark, seemingly of Manhattan. It states that of the 1500 inhabitant including women and children for whom they fear dire consequences, there were only 250 men able to bear arms, and that four English frigates filled with soldiers are at Nyack to oppose them. The fort would probably last only about three days if that option were taken, with "populous New England" ready to supply fresh troops at any time The English General has threatened he will not wait another day. ..."Amen."

A copy of the Articles of Capitulation is in the files at Albany, "subscribed at the Governor's Bowry 27 August 1664," by the persons on the original list. They do not sound overly harsh:

1. We consent that the States-General or West India Company shall freely enjoy all farms and houses (except such as are in the forts) and that within six months they shall have free liberty to transport all such arms and ammunition as now do belong to them, or else they shall be paid for them.

2 All public houses shall continue for the uses they now are for.

3. All people shall still continue free denizens and enjoy their lands, houses, goods, shipps, wheresoever they are within this country, and dispose of them as they please.

4. If any inhabitant have a mind to remove himself he shall have a year and six weeks from this day to remove himself, wife, children servants, goods, and to dispose of his lands here.

5. If any officer of State or Public Minister of State, have a mind to go for England, they shall be transported, freight free, in his Majesty's frigates, when these frigates shall return thither.

Quite a number of inhabitants did opt to return home to the Netherlands, but the majority seemed to be quite resigned, if not pleased, to remain under English rule. ~~AVERILL~~ FAMILY

How much Rev. War officers moved between 1777 and 1790is unknown, but the column of the printed census (pg 53) and the one before it show two Schuyler families, several each of Lansing and Ostrom as well as our family; also Goweys (Maria Goeweys married Rees men in Claverac earlier on).

It is quickest to tell about the Bullocks first. There is no such name in Dutch records and few in New York except in Dutchess Co. in 1790. Thus it seems likely that Comer, shown on our list, was Anna's relative. If it should turn out he was ours, I may in time add a supplement to this book showing her lineage. Comer, like George, got around a lot. There is a genealogy, though it covers only one line of descent and is short on details, but Comer is in it. Page 15 says: *

> "Reverend Elder Comer Bullock^{4} (Daniel^{3} Samuel^{2} Richard^{1}) was born in Rehoboth, Massachusetts, on November 7, 1734, the ninth and youngest child of Daniel and Leah (Beverly) Bullock. He moved to Stanford, Dutchess County, New York, in 1755. With his cousin Ephraim Bullock he founded a Baptist Church there in 1759, as a branch of the Swanzea, Massachusetts, Baptist Church. Histories of the county refer to him as Reverend Elder Comer Bullock and he enjoyed considerable prominence in community affairs."

Stanford TWP is next to Washington TWP indicated on our chart. Comer died 10 June 1812. His wife was Rosamond, maiden name unknown. Of course his cousin Ephraim must have had descendants as well, but that book does not say which of Daniel's brothers was his father.

And now for our possible Dutch lineage. It would be delightful to find it to be true, for those laid-back denizens of the Hudson and the Catskills were as a rule such lovable characters, though, like anyone else, not perfect. We tend to forget that their settlements on the Hudson antedated the landing of the Mayflower by at least a decade. Jersey City NJ had its start in 1610, Bergen in 1616. Fort Nassau near Albany an Indian trading post in 1614--30 Walloon families settled there in 1623, the same year as Manhattan Island was settled. King James I of England protested bitterly in vain that this was English "North Virginia" territory. Though English ships had long traded sporadically along the coast, the Pilgrims were the first to want to emigrate as families, which is probably why he gave those dissenters permission to go, to counteract the Dutch and French.

Holland was remarkably tolerant for those times when religious persecution ran rampant elsewhere. Soon the Hudson was home not only to those Walloons but a great many others, for instance Poles, Jews, Scots, Huguenots to name a few became part of the gene pool; but most were Dutch. Because it was profitable and easy, most became traders at first. The woods abounded with delicacies. Indians would supply a butchered deer for a loaf of bread. To push agriculture the Dutch West India Company and home government established the patroon (manorial) system, which long outlasted their rule.

A~~VERILL~~ FAMILY

Should you want to refresh your memory, some of the New York manors are shown in the little maplet on page 51. (Ignore Herkimer and Schoharie, German settlements that came a little later, where Reis and Reiss families were common.) Though not so indicated, the parts of Connecticut and New Jersey depicted were also Dutch until 1664. There were cultural differences--easygoing Dutchmen considered the hustling Puritans rather absurd; and whereas the English preferred wooden-framed clapboard houses the Dutch favored stone, but with few exceptions the settlers themselves co-existed peaceably, especially with Plymouth Colony. Exceptions may have been made when the mother countries were at war and residents obliged to follow orders. The Dutch were so unwarlike they let what fortifications they had go to ruin. Seeing the handwriting on the wall, in 1664 most declined to assist poor peg-legged Governor Pieter Stuyvesant fight the British, though they were not happy about being taken over.

I shall never become proficient in early Hudson River genealogy. My sources say that not only is it frustrating trying to establish descent, sometimes it is impossible, and those writers are experts. The problem is not so much that the now-existing documents were written in an archaic Dutch dialect, requiring a college course to understand it; but, worse yet, while a few individuals had two or more surnames (both of which they used unpredictably) their wives may have kept their maiden names--leaving endless choices for their children to pick from. On the other hand, most settlers had no surname at all! Patronymics were't used much at first. One might be called Hendrik the lame or Tomas the tailor.

At British insistence after the takeover, surnames were mandated but long in a state of transition. Over the centuries, as their speech was gradually Anglicized, so were the names, but the origins are very diverse. In the previous chapter we saw the example of the Hallenbeck family, who gradually adopted the name of the ancestral home town in Holland. An entertaining example is that of the Van Durzee family--their immigrant ancestor was named Storm Van Durzee because he was born during a storm-at-sea on the way to America. A more usual example, probably similar to that of the Rees family, is that of the very prominent Schuyler family, mentioned several times in this chapter. The immigrants Philip I and David Schuyler were at first called Philip and David Pieterse, being sons of a Pieter Schuyler (the suffix "se" denoting descent when attached to the father's given name).

The Rees descent appears to have been from a man named Andries (Andrew in English) apparently a common given name, for there is a long list of Andriese individuals enumerated among first settlers. There are gaps in the line of descent which need filling in, but IF I HAVE THE CORRECT LINE, our descent is from Andries Rees, evidently a landowner, whose name is on a long list of citizens protesting the takeover by the British.*

The Dutch pronunciation of George's last name was "Race." By 1790 the spelling and inflection were becoming Anglicized to Race, Reese ("se" as a suffix meant "son of"), Rice and steps in between, as demonstrated in the census. For reasons to be explained, early Hudson River genealogy is unless about rich and powerful dynasties. The following meager data is copied almost verbatim from books that style themselves "genealogies" but appear to be mostly baptismal records from scattered old churches, and covers only a few of the Rees(es).

Fort Schenectady

Schenectady, Schenectady County

Known in early colonial years by such names as Corlaer's Fort, the Royal or Queen's Fort (for Queen Anne), and Fort Cosby (for royal Governor William Cosby), this fort on the Mohawk River was all these things: fur trading center and northernmost fortified colonial outpost; major assembly point for English-Provincial and Revolutionary armies; Continental depot for armaments and supplies; and, in 1780, sanctuary for the persecuted Oneida and Tuscarora Indians.

For more than the first hundred years of its existence, it was considered absolutely essential to fortify Schenectady and post a garrison there. A very early petition by New York merchants pleaded "that a new fort be built at Schenectida which lyes twenty miles above Albany and is the utmost English settlement toward the Indians and French, and that fourteen guns and sixty men be placed there."

In early colonial days some settlements on the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers were protected by wooden walls or palisades. Because of the abundance of timber at their very doorsteps, the settlers depended on stockades for protection. In pre-colonial days, the Indians used this type of protection for their castles and villages. They almost universally utilized round poles and, to reduce the possibility of missiles passing through the narrow passages, two or more rows were fixed in quincunx order.

The Dutch were more practical. They employed poles of larger diameter, flattened on opposite sides so that all were fully in contact, with no interstice through which an arrow or bullet could enter. The stockade usually consisted of posts from twelve to eighteen feet long and a foot or more in thickness, sharpened at one end. After the planned line of the stockade was fixed, a trench three feet or more was dug, the poles set in perpendicularly, with flattened sides together, and the earth replaced and rammed against them. Strengthening the top of the stockade was effected by having two adjoining posts bored and fastened together with oaken treenails. Blockhouses or bastions were erected at the angles, with the usual insertion of only one gate in a palisade wall. The effectiveness of blockhouses was usually enhanced by armament.

Schenectady was planted in a strategic situation, surrounded by water and marshes on three sides, with only the southeast exposure open. The French and Indians knew the village as "Corlaer" for Arendt Van Curler who, with fourteen "freemen," founded the settlement in 1661 and immediately surrounded it with a palisade. These first Dutch settlers banded their homes together for their common protection, with their farms located outside the palisade. In today's geography the original plat started at State Street, with the line running along the east side of Ferry Street to about the old Episcopal Church, then straight to the north side of Front Street, just a little beyond Washington Street, then southerly and parallel to the same to State Street.

There was a blockhouse in one of the angles of the stockade that consisted of a double row of high palisades, with barracks, platforms, guns, and lookouts. Many years later, particularly during the Revolution, when the town became an important depot, barracks were constructed outside the walls. The south and west lines of the stockade remained substantially without change right up to the time of its removal soon after the end of the Revolution. The lines along Front and Washington Streets were moved north and west to the river bank, with the Ferry Street line, some time after 1765, carried southeasterly to the present-day Penn-Central depot and then north through the old Dutch Church burying ground to the river bank.

Hardly a year went by that the importance of having the outpost sufficiently fortified and garrisoned was not acknowledged by either the governor or the Assembly, or both. The period from 1688 to 1697 was the most critical in the history of Schenectady. During that time there came the destruction of the village by the French and their allied Jesuit-converted Indians, the massacre, and the captivity of many of the inhabitants, with the inevitable departure of almost all the survivors to Albany, New York City, and other havens of safety.

In anticipation of such an attack, Albany's mayor and civil and military officers met on September 4, 1689, and formed a Committee of Safety. After an anxious session it was resolved to express a message to Capt. Jacob Leisler, acting lieutenant governor in New York, requesting 100 more men, "a Recrute of six hundred weight of Powder and foure hundred Ball, viz. 200 Two pounders and 200 foure pounders with some match and one hundred hand Grenadoes."

Schenectady in 1690 was a village of eighty houses and about four hundred Dutch inhabitants, almost unanimously vehement Leislerian partisans. Jacob Leisler, Protestant leader, led an insurrection against the Council that had assumed a Catholic stand in support of James II, who was considered by the Protestants to be subservient to France's Louis XIV.

Leisler seized the fort in New York City and proclaimed Mary, James II's Protestant daughter, and her husband, William of Orange, the new rulers of England. Albany was governed by conservatives who adhered to the Stuart standard. The bitterness engendered by the royal controversy culminated in the destruction of Schenectady. When Albany's garrison sent a detachment to the Dutch village for its protection, the inhabitants there indignantly refused the soldiers and bade them return to their Catholic masters.

In defiance of repeated warnings by Albany's Committee of Safety, the Dutch at Schenectady foolishly removed the guards from the town's gates and, according to local legend, installed snowmen in the center of the gateways. The night of Saturday, February 8, 1690, is inscribed in the annals of Schenectady as the town's worst disaster. Peter Schuyler, mayor of Albany, was moved to write a few days after the murderous raid, "The cruelties committed at sd. Place no Penn can write nor Tongue expresse."

On that fateful night the Dutch were sound asleep in their houses while a blizzard raged. Just before midnight a force of 114 French and 96 Sault and Algonquin Indians, apparently on their way to attack Fort Orange (Albany), arrived at the village and silently filed through the open gates. When all the homes were surrounded, the war whoop was raised. The night air was rent with hideous screams as the invaders battered down doors and attacked the half-wakened people with knife, club, and tomahawk.

Within an hour sixty inhabitants were slain, with no distinction made as to sex or age. The village was set aflame and seventy-eight houses were burned. Twenty-seven captives were taken and dragged through the snow-clad wilderness to Canada. At least forty horses were loaded with loot, much of it abandoned during the flight while the militia and an army of Mohawks pressed a close pursuit.

Schenectady, a ruination, was in danger of becoming completely depopulated. Albany issued stringent ordinances against removal and pleaded with the Mohawks to guard the remnants of the village. The inhabitants who had fled the butchery were loath to return. For seven years the village gained little or nothing in numbers until the 1697 Treaty of Ryswick (now Rijswijk), near The Hague, Netherlands.

According to a 1690 French account, there were two gates in the palisade—one at the north end of Church Street, and the other at the junction of State and Church streets. In later times there were other entrances, one at Front and Union streets. The foundations of the gates and guardhouses, where Ferry crossed State and Union streets, were unearthed when the town's engineers were laying water pipes in 1871. The first blockhouse, in the north angle of the stockade at or near the junction of Front and Washington streets, was destroyed in 1690. The second blockhouse was erected the same year between Washington Street and the river, opposite the west end of State Street.

Soon after the disastrous raid, the following order was issued by Leisler's commissioners: "Whereas it is judged necessary for to defend Schanechtede and to that purposed it is found requisite that a fort shall be erected to defend ye Inhabitants and oppugn the Enemy if should attack the same."

The second fortification was an extensive enclosure surrounded "by a triple stockade, a new blockhouse at every angle and in each blockhouse two great guns." Within were twenty-eight houses for the residents, two wigwams (more likely longhouses) for the Mohawk Indians, a large barn, and sties for the hogs. In 1698 the population of the township numbered 50 men, 41 women, and 133 children.

The Rev. John Miller's 1695 sketch of this fort is no doubt correct in all essentials. His plan shows that the fort extended across the west end of the village from State to Front Streets, and included much of the area between Washington Street and the binne kil (boat harbor). Miller was chaplain to the British army stationed in New York City. He visited all the upriver forts and returned to his native England the same year. His manuscript is lodged in the British Museum.

The stockade shown on Miller's plan was probably erected on the site of the original palisade. The first blockhouse erected after the massacre was located at the foot of State Street, where it overlooked the farmlands and Great Island, and is the southwest blockhouse of Miller's map. The guardhouse of blockhouse design was at State and Ferry streets and commanded the Albany road. Another blockhouse was at the angle opposite the Episcopal Church, with the fourth blockhouse, larger than the others, at about Washington and Front streets. Miller indicated two entrance gates: one at the south end of South Street and the other on the west side, which opened to the binne kil, the ferry, and the old river road. The triple stockade was probably built by Indians and in their manner, of light poles and not hewn logs; it had to be replaced five years later.

In 1698 the government sent one Col. Romer, a military engineer, to inspect, report upon, and build certain forts needed on the coast and the frontiers. After bewailing "It is a pity and even a shame, to behold a frontier neglected as we not perceive this is," he strongly advised the construction of stone forts.

On May 3, 1699, the governor downgraded the posts at Albany and Schenectady, reporting that they "are so scandalous that I cannot give your Lordships a low enough idea of them. They look more like pounds to impound cattle than Forts." Letters and reports of all the civil and military authorities combined to show England's reprehensible neglect of the safety of the province. From the accounts, the condition of the fortifications and barracks at Schenectady was indeed deplorable, with the stockades completely rotted and the barracks practically uninhabitable. One critical comment said that "it was by no foresight or energy of the Home government that Schenectady & its neighbors had been preserved from a second attack & destruction."

New York's Governor Lord Cornbury, in his report of September 24, 1702, to the Lords of Trade, wrote that Schenectady was > an open village, formerly stockaded round but since the peace they are all down, and that the stockaded fort is more like a pound than a Fort. There is eight Guns in it not above three for service, no garrison in it when I came but a serjeant & twelve men, no powder nor shot neither great nor small, nor no place to put them into.

The governor recommended that a stone fort be erected and garrisoned with "a captain and one hundred men." The following year foundations were laid for a stone fort at Albany, and by the "advice of Her Majesty's [Queen Anne] Council of this province repaired as well as possible the stockaded Fort at Schenectady."

By the year 1704 the Royal or Queen's New Fort had been built in the east corner of the village at the junction of Front, Ferry, and Green streets. This was the old fort around which all the traditions and legends of the Schenectady people are centered. Originally it was a double or triple stockade of 100 feet square, with bastions or blockhouses at all the angles. In 1735 it was substantially rebuilt of timbers on a stone foundation. The four curtains or ramparts were "about 76 ft. each and the four bastions or blockhouses 24 ft. square." While digging trenches for the installation of water pipes in 1871, the south wall and the fort's well were unearthed.

After the Peace of Utrecht, ending Queen Anne's War in America (1701-13), there was a long period of relative quiet, with no fear of war hanging over the heads of the frontier's inhabitants. The long peace, however, was shattered in 1745 with the outbreak of King George's War. Just before the war's end in 1748, marked by the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, the Assembly in Albany passed an act to erect two new blockhouses at Schenectady.

Six years later, at the beginning of the last of the French and Indian wars, when the Schenectady fortification was called Fort Cosby, the Assembly voted to raise three thousand pounds "to be expended in fortifying" Schenectady. The appropriation was apparently made in answer to the following petition, dated August 31,1754:

> To the Honorable James De Lancey, Lieut. Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Province of New York and the Territories depending thereon.
> The Humble petition of the Officers of the four Companies of Militia at Schonechtady and also the Magistrates and Principal Inhabitants thereof.
> Most Humbly Sheweth that the security of this place as well as the preservation of the Lives of our Wives and children greatly depends on the strength of Fort Cosby as the only place of refuge in case of an Attack or surprize. The Hostilities committed by the Indians on our Neighbours and the Daily Expectation of their Attempts upon us also; Induces us most humbly to represent to your Honour the state of the said Garrison which Consists of 4 Curtains of about 76 feet each and four Bastions or block-houses 24 feet square, the superstructure built with timbers on a foundation of a stone wall about two feet above the surface of the earth.
> On the Parade stands one Nine Pounder and one six pounder on carriages rotten and unfit for service. Nor is there any Embrasure or rather Port-Hole in the Curtains to fire them.
> Above is a sort of Gallery Loophold but of little or no service. In each of the Bastions or Block houses Chambers stand of three or four > pounder, mettle, very insignificant, Should the enemy make a lodgement in any part of the town; Nor is there Powder or any other Military Stores in the Garrison—Garrisoned with only an Officer, a corporal and sixteen Private men.

> And we further beg leave to represent to your Honour the Ruinous and Defenceless condition of this town: the Block houses in Decay and the town open and exposed; and that the number of Indians passing and repassing is a daily burthen to us, too heavy to be borne to which add the Expenses of frequent Indian Expresses makes the weight still more grevious as there is no Allowance or Publick fund to Reimburse and we still groan our Losses, sufferings and fatigue in the Late War as well as heavy Debt then contracted.
> To expatiate on the value of this town as a frontier of the Province would be troublesome, your Honour well knowing it to be the Key of a Large Country and of the greatest Consequence to the Metropolis as well as to the province in General you have the Honour to command.
> Your Petitioners therefore most humbly entreat your Honour will be pleased to take the premises into your Serious Consideration and Grant us two Nine Pounders for each curtain and a Nine Pounder for each Bastion & that you would be pleased to give orders that the Port Holes be made to open and shut as in a Man of War, and to grant us a proper supply of Military stores, and such other assistance as you in Your great Wisdom shall think meet.

The Miller map of 1695 is the oldest and, though it lacks a scale and street lines, it is important in that it gives the historian a good perspective. The map of Schenectady made by British army topographers about 1750 appears in a book of thirty North American fortification plans published by Mary Anne Rocque at London in 1763. The line of palisades shown with blockhouses at the proper intervals and the Royal or Queen's Fort erected in 1704 in the northeast angle essentially represent the defensive works of Schenectady for more than half a century. The Vrooman map of 1768 depicts the fort, the market-place, the two churches, all correctly placed.

Nicholas Veeder, who died in 1862 at the age of one hundred years at Glenville, a few miles north of Schenectady, had reported before his death that the fort was about twenty feet high and constructed of hewn timber, that it was dismantled at the end of the Revolution, and that the timber was used in the frame of the barracks erected at the south corner of Union and Lafayette streets.

The village during the Revolution boasted an armament of iron cannons and swivels, the largest of which were the "Lady Washington" and the "Long Nine-Pounder" placed in the streets to command the gates. Chastellux visited Schenectady on December 28, 1780. He reported that > this town stands at the foot of a small declivity, on your coming out of the woods; it is regularly built, and contains five hundred houses within the palisades, without counting some dwellings which form a suburb, and the Indian village [the Oneida and Tuscarora refugee camp] adjoining this suburb. Two families, and eight inhabitants, are reckoned to a house.

Today the Schenectady Stockade Historic District, established in 1962, encompasses the general area that was surrounded by the palisade erected by the settlement's founders. Within the district are some four hundred structures, about fifty of them with markers giving names of the early owners and the dates of construction before 1825. James Schmidt, President of the Stockade Association, stressed that "the Stockade is not a museum or a reconstructed area, but a community which had endured since 1661, despite time and tragedies."

Fort Schlosser

Niagara Falls, Niagara County

The only remnant of two old forts on the Niagara Frontier is a seemingly imperishable two-story double-flued chimney that has posed preservation and memorial problems for the city of Niagara Falls through most of the decades of this century.

The second oldest extant example of masonry construction in the region (Fort Niagara's House of Peace is the oldest), the chimney was first utilized in the two-story barracks and messhall of Fort Little Niagara (Fort du Portage). Built in the fall of 1750 by Robert de Clausonne, French army engineer, the fort stood at the head of the Niagara River's rapids a little more than a mile behind Niagara's Falls, and about a dozen miles south of old Fort Niagara.

Chabert Joncaire, whose influence shaped the history of the frontier, was Master of the Niagara Portage. His efforts during the next decade developed the village of Little Fort Niagara, which included log dwellings, a storehouse, a one-hundred-foot-long stable, a forty-two-foot barn, a forty-foot shed, a wharf on the river, and the fort's stockade that protected the blockhouse and barracks.

The French destroyed the fort in 1759 to prevent its use by the British then besieging Fort Niagara. The following year the British, needing a strong defense at the upper end of the portage, ordered Capt. Joseph Schlosser, a German officer in the Crown's service, to build a new fort. A much larger defense, an earthwork fort with four bastions, was constructed on the site of Fort du Portage, and called Fort Schlosser for its builder.

Capt. Schlosser, interestingly enough, made use of the chimney left intact after the French burned their fort. Since a strong garrison was to be posted at the new fort, a large barracks and messhouse were required. Peter A. Porter, descendant of the family that purchased the land on which the forts once stood, in his role of President of theNiagara Frontier Historical Society, wrote an article about the famous chimney in 1902:

> Just before their surrender of Fort Niagara the French had prepared the complete framework for a new chapel therein. This, the British carted over the portage and set up near and southeast of this chimney, even the belfry being placed on the roof. It was a two-story building, used as barracks above, and messhall below. Between it and the chimney they built a connecting two-story building. The first story of the chapel building, the messhall, evidently had a higher ceiling than that of the burned French barracks. For, in order to utilize the upper fireplace that existed in the chimney in the second story of this connecting building the British had to make the first story there of a less height than the lower story of the old chapel. In this addition or connecting building the first story was used as a kitchen, its upper story possibly as the sleeping-rooms for the soldier cooks, or more likely, as the sleeping-rooms of John Steadman, the master of the portage, after whom the whole house was always called, the Steadman House, and who occupied it for the greater part of a quarter of a century.

The Portage Road was the connecting link on the northern frontier between East and West, bridging the distance between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. All the prominent actors in the history of the Niagara Frontier over a sixty-year span dined in the two messhalls, those of the French barracks and Fort Schlosser, both served by the same cooking fireplace.

During the Revolution the fort was garrisoned by a small force, serving as a guard on the portage, since the Patriot military never extended its operations that far. In 1796, according to the provisions of the Jay Treaty, the British evacuated all the posts on the northern frontier in American territory.

Fort Schlosser was garrisoned by a very small contingent, representing a caretaking crew, until the first hostilities of the War of 1812 required the posting of a larger force there. Early in the war the British occupied the fort for one day when a party of raiders went out to capture munitions and armaments. In December 1813 the British captured Fort Schlosser and burned it. All that was left was the stone chimney that had served the military needs of three nations.

Schuyler's Supply Depot

Stillwater, Saratoga County

The first of four forts at Stillwater, all approximately on the same site on the west bank of the Hudson River, was erected by Col. Peter Schuyler in 1709 and named Fort Ingoldsby in honor of Maj. Richard Ingoldsby, acting governor of the Province of New York at the time. The second was built in 1756 by Gen. John Winslow and called Fort Winslow in honor of himself. The third was constructed under the supervision of the Royal military engineer Col. James Montresor. These fortifications were stockaded and loopholed blockhouses erected for the express purpose of repelling Indian attacks and probably could not have held up against even the artillery of that era.

Continental Gen. Philip Schuyler, a descendant by marriage of Peter Schuyler, in an effort to stem the advance of Burgoyne's invasion army built a fortified supply depot at Stillwater during the first week of August 1777. In order to commemorate the place, with no vestige of any of these fortifications remaining, a New York State Historical Marker was placed at the approximate site:

Fort Skenesborough

Whitehall, Washington County

Fortifications involved in three wars were constructed at present-day Whitehall, in what was once Maj. Philip Skene's baronial wilderness empire of sixty thousand acres, with part of the domain spilling over into the disputed Hampshire Grants (now Vermont). The initial royal grant of thirty-four thousand acres (a tract later augmented by land purchases) on Lake Champlain in 1759 led the English-born Scotsman to establish Skenesborough (Whitehall after the Revolution) at the southern tip of the lake, the birthplace of the United States Navy.

The first structures in Skenesborough were the British blockhouse and barracks on a hill to the west of Wood Creek, erected during the French and Indian War. The hill has since been bisected by a road (SR 22). The site is between today's Presbyterian Church and the Masonic Temple.

LUDWIG RUES (Hunter Lists #618)

The correct Ruß/Rooß family was finally documented at 6331 Hohensolms (18 km. n.e. of Braunfels; Chbks. begin 1669, Ref.) and 6334 Werdorf (8 km. n.w. of Wetzlar; Chbks. begin 1653). The grandmother of the emigrant probably was the Lisa Margaretha Ros, bur. 5 Dec 1689, aged 79 (?) yrs. at Hohensolms. The father of the 1709er was Hans Georg Rooß, who md. Anna Maria, d/o the miller from Leun, 6 April 1673 (Hohensolms Chbk.). They had ch.:

Anna Margaretha, bpt. 5 March 1671 as "A Young Daughter" - sp.: Anna Margaretha Gunter from Anhalt of the inn.

Customers at the Pluckemin store 1768 - 1775, included John Remer Sr. (Somerset Historical Society Quarterly, Vol. 2, p. 265).

John P. Dern of Redwood City, Calif. has been of great help in gathering information on this family, as he has on all the N.J. 1709ers (HJ).

CHRISTIAN RÖMSCH (Hunter Lists #611)

Christian Römsch made his only appearance on the Hunter Lists 4 July 1710, with 3 pers. over 10 yrs. of age in the household.

Although no connection with the N.Y. settler has been found, there was a John Adam Romich who md. Maria Ursula Kraemer 19 June 1733 at Skippach (Stoever Chbks.).

ANDREAS ROOS (Hunter Lists #612)

An Andreas Roos was noted on a citizen's list at 6525 Westhofen in 1704; he probably was the Andreas, s/o Andreas Ros and wife Maria - both Papist, bpt. 18 March 1660 there. However, no definite connection between the Westhofen group and the N.J. family has been established (HJ). An Andreas Roth aged 24, Luth., baker, was in the 4th arrivals in England in 1709 (London Lists).

Andreas Roos made his initial appearance on the Hunter Rolls 4 Aug 1710 with 3 pers. over 10 yrs. and 1 pers. under 10 yrs. of age. He was listed with just 1 pers. over 10 yrs. of age on 4 Oct 1710 and thereafter on the Hunter Lists. Andreas Ross: 1 man, was in Ulster Co. in 1710/11 (West Camp Census). Andrew Rose was in the 7th Company of Col. Thomas Ffarmar's Regiment in N.J. in 1715 (Report of the State Historian, Vol. I, p. 537). Andreas Ross and his wife with 2 ch. were auf dem Rarendantz ca. 1716/17 (Simmendinger Register). There was an Andraes Raes found in the Freehold and Middletown Ref. Chbk. in N.J. who md. (--) Higby and had daughters Hanna bpt. 23 March 1712 and Anna Marike bpt. 19 May 1717; however, he probably was not the emigrant 1709er (HJ). The w/o Andreas^1 Roos was Caecilia (--) (HJ); Caecilia Rosen joined the Luth. Church on Raretons 17 June 1716 (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.). The ch. of Andreas^1 Roos and Caecilia were:

1) Johannes^2, bpt. 28 Oct 1713 - sp.: Jacob Wickhoff and wife (Somerville Ref. Chbk.).
2) Elisabetha^2, bpt. 28 Oct 1713, the same day - sp.: same (Somerville Ref. Chbk.). The name of the mother is not mentioned in the entry (HJ).
3) Catharina^2, b. 10 Nov 1716 at 10 Mile Run and bpt. at Raritons - sp.: Johannes Roos and Catharina Messner (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).
4) Christina^2, b. 14 May 1718 at 10 Mile Run and bpt. at Raritons - sp.: Simon Vocht and wife Christina (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).
5) Caecilia^2, b. 1 Feb 1720 and bpt. at Raritons at Baldus Pickels - sp.: Johannes Roose and wife Magdalena (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).

Johannes Roos was related somehow to Andreas^1 Roos (HJ); he sp. Andreas in 1716 and 1720, according to the N.Y. City Luth. Chbk. Johannes Roos joined the church 4 Aug 1717 (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.). Johannes Roos md. Anna Magdalena (--) (HJ). His ch. were:

1?) Henrich^2, called Jno Rose's son in the Janeway Accounts; however, there appear to have been several Johannes Roos/Roses in colonial N.J. at the time, so firm connections are difficult (HJ). A Henrich Roose and wife Maria Barbele sp. at Rachewaij in Raretans in 1733 (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).
2) Johann Jacob^2, b. 11 Nov 1718 at Raritens-house of Balth. Pickel - sp.: Jacob Risch and wife Eva (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.). Jacob Roos, s/o Johann Rohs, was conf. 21 April 1734 (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).
3) Johann Christophel^2, b. 14 Nov 1720 on Raritons - sp.: Johannes Wimmer and wife Wyntge (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).
4) Anna Catharina^2, conf. as d/o Joh. Rohs 21 April 1734 (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.).

There were several Roos/Rose/Rohs family members noted in Luth. Church in N.Y. and N.J. N.Y. Chbks. are full of entries for ✓various Reeses who occasionally were recorded as Rooses: 1) Elizabeth, d/o Andreas Rees at Klaverack, md. Adam Silbernagel, s/o Niclas from Bingen, 4 May 1728 at Kamp (N.Y. City Luth. Chbk.); ✓ 2) Benjamin Rees and wife Gertraud had a son Henrich b. 22 May 1717 - sp.: Andreas Rees and Catharina Rees (West Camp Luth. Chbk.); and 3) Ephraim Reess (Roos in some translations - HJ), s/o Wilhelm of Claverack, md. Margretha Brehjes, d/o Christoph of Rulphians Kill near Livingston Manor, 21 Sept 1714 (West Camp Luth. Chbk.). The 1709er contingent, however, seems to have included only the N.J. Andreas^1 Roos and his relative Johannes Roos (HJ).

forward. They had several children besides Jacques. Hillitje and Leah were daughters. Broer Cornelius Van Slyck acted for many years as interpreter for the Province. He died in 1676. The son, Jacques and the daughter, Hillitje, became affiliated by marriage with some of the best white families in the community.

Daniel Janse Van Antwerpen became a resident of the Village in 1670, and in 1700–1701 served as the Supervisor of the township. One of his descendents, Simon Van Antwerp was appointed by the Governor in 1790 as Lieutenant of the militia and four years later was advanced to the rank of Captain.

Simon Groot, son of Simon Symouse Groot, one of the settlers of 1663, constructed the first bridge over College Brook, or Hansen Kil, near the present American Locomotive Company's plant.

Rynier Schaats, physician and surgeon, settled in Schenectady in 1675. In 1689 Jacob Leisler appointed Dr. Schaats one of the justices of the peace of Schenectady. The doctor and one of his sons were killed in the massacre of 1690.

Dr. Jacobus Van Dyck, another physician, located in the village in 1664. He was for some time surgeon at the fort.

THE DUTCH REFORMED CHURCH

To write in completeness of detail the history of the Dutch Reformed Church would constitute the record of the vital part of Schenectady's early history. The church during the first hundred years or more was so closely associated and interlinked with both the spiritual and temporal affairs of the community that it was almost the main energy during those years.

Dutch regime in 1664, as a result of the inglorious attempt at empire building, the entire population of New-Netherland did not exceed ten thousand. Beverwyck had been established fifty years, and during this time had been wholly engrossed in the one proposition—that of the fur trade. Outside of Rensselærwyck no movement had been made toward the upbuilding of the adjacent country and the colonists in Rensselærwyck were merely the tenants of the patroon. In this unhappy condition of affairs a few of the colonists united in the founding of Schenectady.

Bennony Berentse Hoeck was one of the early settlers. He married the widow of Pieter Cornelise Viele who had children by her first husband. Hoeck was charged with cruel treatment of these children, was arrested therefor and haled before a magistrate. Schenectady was barely established when Dutch dominion came to an end in the Province. In September, 1664, the English became the supreme force and Richard Nicoll became the Governor of the Province.

While the Dutch were in power there was a small fort at Albany garrisoned by a few soldiers, but after the assumption of control by England the force at that place was often more than one full company and a part of the time two companies were stationed there. The fort at Adam Vrooman declined to observe the order, however and also refused to give it countenance.

January, 1690, came with no abatement in the wide spread terror of a possible attack. Meanwhile steps were taken to procure a band of scouts to go northward and report any information or intelligence of an approaching enemy. At this juncture a group of Mohawks reported at Albany as follows:

"Brethren—We have been sent by ye 40 Maquase Souldiers now at Schenectady to acquaint ye that they are come to go out as Skouts toward ye lake and Otter Creek to wath ye Designs of ye Deceious ye Governor of Canada to see if he will come and Invade our Country again and if we Discern any Progresse of his we have four Indians yt wee send forth Post to give ye and our people advertisement."

The Indians went out on their mission but failed to discover the approaching enemy. When they returned the wreck of Schenectady had been accomplished

THE MASSACRE, OR THE BURNING OF SCHENECTADY

The story of the massacre or burning of Schenectady has filled many pages of history. The main causes for the disaster have been fully set forth in the preceding pages yet without doubt one of the immediate inspirations leading to the attack at the time was the precipitation of the religious element or influence into the Colonial civic affairs. It has been alleged too that Leisler's ill directed efforts in fomenting religious strife and the responsive action of many of the citizens of Schenectady were inciting causes. Both the French, and the Indians, who had been won to the Catholic faith, were imbued with a religious frenzy that hesitated not to wreak vengeance on all heretics.

John Alexander Glen, who was commander and a Justice of the peace of the village, advised the inhabitants to take measures for protection and to have the entrances patrolled by guards. On account of his refusal, however, to espouse the Leisler cause, Glen was in ill favor among many of the villagers, to the extent that he was not permitted to enter the village. As a result of this disregard of counsel and the pervading apathy among many of the citizens, the gates on the fatal night of February 8, 1690, were left open with no more formidable sentinels than snow images.

The invading force, comprising one hundred and fourteen Frenchmen and ninety-six Savages, under command of Lemoine de Sainte Helene and Lieutenant De Aillibout de Mantet left Montreal on the 17th of January making the journey of two hundred miles, a greater part of the distance through a dense wilderness, facing the intensely cold weather and snow lying from three to five feet deep upon the ground. On a Saturday night, February 8, the party arrived within two miles of the frontier settlement and there halted to hold a council. The march of twenty-two days bearing the heavy luggage coupled with the suffering experienced from the cold at first inclined them to abandon the attack and surrender themselves as a means of self-preservation. Meanwhile Indian scouts were sent to the village to take note of the conditions and the expediency of an immediate onslaught. Although the plan seems to have been to attack in the early morning, the favorable report of the scouts and the intensity of the temperature urged them on for an early invasion. At eleven that night when they reached the gates of the stockades there was quiet within and no guards without to oppose their entrance. There were two gates, the main one at the corner of Church and Front and the other at or near the corner of Church and State streets. Outside the stockades there were only a few houses which were scattered along the north side of the Albany path, or State street. At the northwestern corner of the village near the Binne Kil was the fort double garrisoned by a detachment of twenty-four men under command of Lieutenant Talmage. If in these circumstances there had been an ordinary sense of self-preservation and had sane action governed the villagers, an enemy much more formidable than the attacking one could have been successfully resisted, if not wholly so, at least for a time until aid could have been secured.

The attacking party finding the village deep in slumber divided into two companies one to enter at either gate, but it seems the south gate could not be located, consequently the whole force approached by the main gate. Once inside they separated into squads in order to compass the work of slaughter, pillage and burning as speedily as possible. Before the sleeping settlers were aroused to the danger every quarter of the village was attacked simultaneously, many meeting death without realizing the provocation for their slaughter. The people were awakened only to be put to death by the savages incited by the Frenchmen. A feeble effort at defense was made by a few persons but resistence in most instances was futile. Adam Vrooman living near the north gate, it is said, turned a volley of lead unto the invaders from the upper window of his dwelling until he exacted a promise from the commander that his life should be spared. His son, Barent, and a negro, however, were killed.

In the space of two hours sixty persons were slaughtered and many wounded. Dominie Tasselmaker, the first pastor of the Dutch church, was among the slain, although it was said that the intention was to spare him for the purpose of securing information. In face of the intense cold and the deep snow many citizens fled in the darkness with bare feet and thinly clothed to Albany, and it is said also that several of these suffered the loss of their feet by freezing, and others died from exposure. When the invaders had secured such plunder as they could carry, the burning was started and by morning two houses only inside the stockade and three situated on State street were left standing. The two houses left undestroyed within the enclosure were that of Captain Sander Glen whose house and proprety were spared by order of the Governor of Canada, and the other was the house of the widow Bradt, in which a wounded Frenchman was cared for. The enemy suffered the loss of two killed and one wounded.

The French and Indians undisturbed occupied the village the rest of the night and at eleven o'clock the next (Sunday) morning began their retreat to Canada with twenty-seven prisoners and fifty horses bearing the booty. Nineteen of their number according to record perished on the retreat.

The number and names of those killed are best told in the simple and pathetic language of those directly connected with the tragedy. The list is given herewith:

AFTER THE BURNING

Many of the citizens, as stated, fled to Albany and others to New York for safety. Those who remained looked upon the ruin and wreck of their thirty years of industry and frugality, all swept away in a night. More depressing still was the contemplation of the awful death toll that fate had exacted. In these conditions and circumstances the abandonment of the town was seriously considered.

The following account in part of the circumstances and conditions was sent from Albany:

"Albany, ye 9th day of February, 1690,

"Die Sabbathi.

"This morning about five o'clock ye alarm was brought here by Symon Schermerhoarn who was shott threw his Thigh yt ye French and Indians had murthered ye People of Skinnechtady; having got into ye Towne about 11 or 12 a Clock there being no Watch Kept (ye inhabitants being so negligent and Refractary) and yt ye had much a doe to Escape they being very numerous. They fyred severall times at him at last threw his Thigh and wounded his horse and was come over Canatagoine to bring ye news."

Another account on the fifteenth of the same month contains the following:

"The Cruelties Committed at said Place no Penn can Write nor Tongue Expresse, ye women bigg with Childe Rep'ed up and ye Children alive Throwne into ye flames and there heads Dash'd in Pieces aganst the Doors and Windows."

From a crudely composed "Ballad" written by Walter Willie, a soldier who apparently had some part in the occurrence, the following verses are copied:

of preventing captured Indians from escaping or rebelling, by the second decade of the eighteenth century hundreds of male Indian slaves were being shipped out of South Carolina to the West Indies and to New York and the New England colonies. This exportation would account for the reclassification of the slave population of Albany County, and it may also explain what appears to be an increase of adult male slaves in the county as a whole. In 1714, for Albany County in its entirety, there was a rough correspondence of mature male and female slaves. Women amounted to 44 percent and men 56 percent of the slaves over the age of sixteen. The 1723 categories were not age specific; adult slaves were listed simply as "Men" and "Women." Within these groupings there were 307 males and 200 females. Without age specification, by this classification female slaves accounted for only 39 percent of the adult population, while males were 61 percent of the total.[56]

The possibility that by the 1720s Indians were being held as slaves within Albany County marks a dramatic contrast with the situation of the seventeenth century. In 1683 Jonathan Bull of Connecticut ✓ arrived at Albany with two Indian servants. Both quickly ran away and Bull's attempts to retrieve them from the Indians at Schaghticoke by whom they were harbored were unsuccessful. The court at Albany could do no more than recommend that the two Indians be returned. Finally, Bull accepted an arrangement by which "the Indians living at Skachkook . . . would give him 30 beavers for the two Indians." In recording the incident, the court minutes simply stated that Bull "was not allowed to take them away by force, because all Indians here are free."[57]

The recognition of native autonomy tendered by the Albany court illustrates what, according to Gary Nash, "can be regarded as a kind of litmus test of the balance of power between the two cultures." In New Netherland and New York, during the seventeenth century, Indian-white relations in the Hudson-Mohawk region took place within a framework of peace and regard for tribal sovereignty. It was a relationship that, as detailed by Allen Trelease, both sides valued: "The two races regarded each other less often as corn thieves, trespassers, or Indian givers than as sources of economic prosperity; what they thought of each other personally was beside the point."[58]

Throughout these years Albany remained the locale for the formal handling of Indian affairs—economic and diplomatic. Except for Reyer Schermerhorn, no one from Schenectady served as a member of the Albany-based Commissioners of Indian Affairs and only rarely was the community the site of a full-fledged Indian conference such as the one that occurred in July 1702 between the Mohawks and Governor Cornbury. Yet during both the seventeenth and the early eighteenth centuries, a number of Schenectady's inhabitants emerged as essential intermediaries in the machinery of Indian affairs as interpreters and provincial emissaries. One of the most active in the first half of the eighteenth century was Lourens Claesen Van der Volgen. Captured by the French in 1690, he returned from Canada nine years later having acquired fluency in the Iroquois language. Until his death in about 1740, Van der Volgen was employed as a provincial interpreter among the Five Nations. Details of his activities can be gained from the minutes of conferences such as that held between Governor Robert Hunter and the Iroquois at Schenectady in 1710. It was recorded that "the Interpreter Lawrence Clace being come from ye Sinnekes Country & ye rest of ye 5 Nations westward, doth relate to his Excelly Robt Hunter . . . what has occurred to him among sd Indians in ye 3 months that he has been from Albany." Undertaken during a time of war, Van der Volgen's mission had strategic significance, but it also included an important commercial component. Ever since the 1680s, attempts had been made to tap the peltry supplies of the tribes to the west of the Iroquois. Van der Volgen had been "sent taken captive to Canada, where Abram died June 12, 1747.

[58] Nash, Red, White, and Black, 97, 106; Trelease, Indian Affairs, 115. To a large degree, Indian-white relations in the Hudson-Mohawk region during the seventeenth century corresponded to the situation in New France, where, according to William Eccles, the French colony "had divided sovereignty, French and Indian." Quoted in Nash, Red, White, and Black, 107.

In 1755, there was a company of militia known as the 89th, under Captain William McGinnis, and Lieutenant Jonathan Storm. The company took part in the battle of Fort George this year, doing valiant service. Both of the commanders were killed in this engagement. From this date to the beginning of the war of the Revolution, however, there are few records in reference to military organizations in Schenectady.

The years from the founding of Schenectady in 1661 to the close of the war for independence in 1782, covered a strenuous period for the inhabitants of the border country; and the interim between the last French and English war, 1754–1763, was so brief that the curtain scarcely once dropped in the human life drama during this one hundred and twenty years.

The war of the Revolution, however, induced action of an entirely different character, and Schenectady was again called upon to bear an important part in the final struggle for freedom. General Washington visited Schenectady at the breaking out of this war to make arrangement for the defense of the frontier. Washington on this occasion was the guest of John Glen at his residence in the village. Glen was then quartermaster of the department and his brother, Henry, was deputy.

Schenectady in connection with Albany took early action in the matter of defense and the organization of military companies for service. The committee of correspondence, safety and protection was formed early in May, 1775. Much seriousness and earnestness entered into this movement, yet it had its droll aspect as will be seen by the following resolution of the board at one of its early meetings.
